

VETERANS MEET AT ROCHESTER

Forty-Fifth Annual Encampment of the G. A. R.

PROGRAM FOR A BUSY WEEK

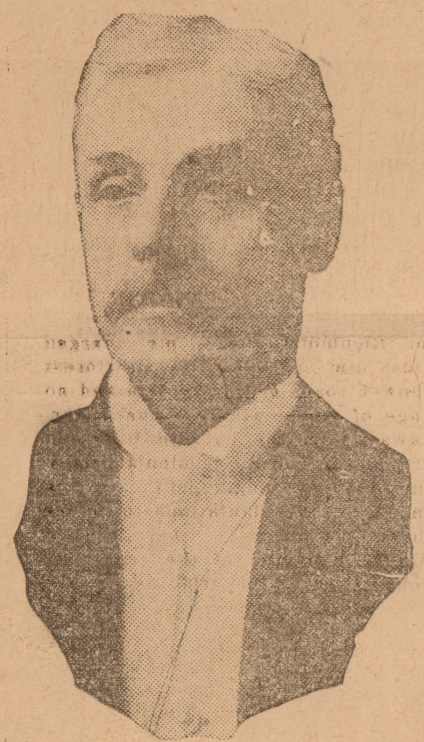

Governor Dix Will Review the Big Parade on Wednesday—President Taft May Attend if Congress Adjourns.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Commander-in-Chief John E. Gilman and staff of Boston have arrived here for the forty-fifth annual encampment, Grand Army of the Republic, and established headquarters. Mrs. Emma E. Pierce of Springfield, national president of the Ladies' G. A. R., and Fred E. Bolton, Boston, commander-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans, are also here.

Monday will be devoted to the reception of the executive bodies of the various organizations. On Tuesday the various organizations, excepting the Grand Army of the Republic, will hold sessions for the transaction of business during the day, and in the evening all will attend the semi-official opening of the G. A. R. encampment at Convention hall.

The trooping of about 100 old battle flags will furnish the spectacular feature of the gathering. Governor Dix will deliver an address.

President Taft will be present if congress adjourns before Tuesday, and Governor Dix will review the big parade on Wednesday. In the evening the veterans will hold their camp fire in Convention hall. On Thursday the business sessions will begin. Among the important matters expected to be taken up will be pension legislation.

The contest for the next commander-in-chief will be a warm one. Colonel John McElroy, editor of the National Tribune of Washington, and Judge Hargreaves, of Bloomington, Ill., are candidates.

Los Angeles is out after the next annual encampment.

PRINTERS FINISH BUSINESS

INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION MEETING CLOSES AT FRISCO.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 21.—Delegates to the International Typographical union convention completed their labors, finding little to do at the last session. All the important matters were disposed of at the previous day's session, when the delegates gave emphatic evidence of their confidence in the administration. "Insurgents" lost on every attempt to obtain condemnation of decisions of President Lynch. The Chicago American strike was declared illegal.

Many of the delegates departed for Los Angeles, where a two day program of entertainment has been arranged by the Los Angeles local union.

Congressman Sails in Charge of Statue to Baron Von Steuben.

New York, Aug. 21.—Daughters of the American Revolution gave a reception and dinner on the steamship George Washington in honor of Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri, who sailed in charge of a statue to Baron Von Steuben, which congress presents to the German government.

The statue is a duplicate of the one erected in Washington. Dr. Bartholdt was named by President Taft as special commissioner for the presentation in Berlin.

MOTHER-IN-LAW IN BAD

Daughter's Husband Has Her Deported to England.

Philadelphia Man Tells the Officials the Woman Is a Constant Trouble Maker.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 21.—Among the passengers who sailed from here for Liverpool on the steamer Merion was a mother-in-law, who has been "turned down" by her son-in-law and was being deported by the national government because she was likely to become a public charge. The mother-in-law is an English woman and her son-in-law is a resident of this city.

When the woman arrived here a week ago on the Merion to make her home with her daughter, the son-in-law protested to the immigration authorities against her being landed.

In his formal protest he declared the mother-in-law, who had visited him before, to be a perpetual trouble-maker, objectionable in many ways, and that it was impossible for him to live under the same roof with her. His wife joined him in the formal objection to her mother.

YPSI FAMILY MEET

CIRCUMSTANCES WITH CLEVER VACATION PLAN

A rather original plan for a vacation is being employed by the family of one of Ypsilanti's prominent residents. Circumstances prevent the family's leaving the city so a competent woman has been secured to attend the household duties and prepare the meals for the vacation week. Daily trips will be made in the family auto to the homes of friends in nearby towns or to some small lake within a radius of 15 or 20 miles at which time a lunch will be taken. The family will return home each night. In this way the housewife will be relieved entirely of all household duties and cares for the week which will be given up entirely to pleasure of both children and parents.

THREE IN AUTO KILLED

ACCIDENT HAPPENS IN WISCONSIN IN TRYING TO AVOID TRAIN.

Pewaukee, Wis., Aug. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ferguson of Chicago and W. J. Cunningham of Lynchburg, Va., were killed in an automobile accident at a crossing of the St. Paul road two miles east of Pewaukee.

The party was on the way from Waukeesa to Milwaukee, and as the machine neared the railroad crossing a freight train came in view. In an effort to avoid a collision with the train the automobile was turned into a fence. It turned turtle throwing all of the occupants under the wheels of the locomotive and cars.

Mrs. Ferguson was instantly killed. Her husband was dragged from the tracks unconscious and expired in fifteen minutes. Mr. Cunningham died after regaining consciousness for a few minutes at a Milwaukee hospital.

COTTON MEASURE FOR TODAY

President Preparing Message Crushing Last Tariff Bill and No Attempt to Override Veto Is Contemplated.

WORK OF EXTRAORDINARY SESSION OF 62d CONGRESS.

Important Measures Enacted. Canadian reciprocity. Campaign publicity and corrupt practices act. Reapportionment. Statehood for Arizona and New Mexico.

Important Measures Remaining in Conference.

Direct election of United States Senators. Important Feature. Beginning of investigations into various matters of which the public is thinking much.

Washington, Aug. 21.—The extra session of congress will expire at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. An agreement to that effect has been reached by the leaders of the senate and the house, and their plan has received the approval of the president.

Today the house is expected to accept the amendment made by the senate to the cotton bill which originated in the lower branch of congress. The president is preparing his veto message and will transmit it this afternoon or Tuesday to the house. No attempt will be made to pass the measure over the veto.

At 2 o'clock the vice president and the speaker of the house will announce simultaneously that the extra session is at an end.

The decision of the house leaders to accept the senate amendments to the cotton bill was reached following a meeting of the ways and means committee. At that meeting consideration was given to the measure.

It was found the revision of the chemical and iron and steel schedules, the reduction of duties on cotton machinery and the blanket amendment prescribing that no duty on any of the articles named in the bill should exceed 20 per cent were in harmony with Democratic leaders.

FINAL RITES SUNDAY

FUNERAL OF ANDREW J. SAWYER HELD IN M. E. CHURCH AT ANN ARBOR.

Ann Arbor, August 21.—A large concourse of people assembled in the main auditorium of the Methodist church at two o'clock Sunday afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of Andrew J. Sawyer, Sr.

The honorary and regular pallbearers and members of the Washtenaw County Bar occupied the left wing of the church; the family, relatives and the Knights Templar and friends occupied the center; lower degree Masons and friends filled the left wing, while other citizens and friends filled the galleries. Flowers in profusion surrounded and covered the remains.

Mrs. Jessie Reed, of the Ann Arbor School of Music, accompanied by the pipe organ, sang with sympathetic effect, "Crossing the Bar."

Rev. Arthur W. Stalker preached feelingly upon the theme, "What is Life?" He recalled many of the characteristics of the dead to life, which accounted for his success. Mr. Sawyer died, he said, with the hope that he might find a future life with work in it for him as he had found the present life. The love of work abided with him to the last.

After the rendition of another beautiful solo by Mrs. Reed, the audience in sections viewed the remains in the vestibule of the church.

The large procession accompanied the remains to the receiving vault in Forest Hill cemetery. The interment will later be at Chelsea, the old home of the deceased.

SEN. FRANK NEWTON WILL PROBABLY NOT RUN FOR SEC. OF STATE

A new side of the next state campaign seems to be revealed by the fact that Senator Frank Newton who has accepted a position in the sales department of the Jackson Automobile Co. YPSI MEN STAR IN FAST MANEUVERS

"One of the quickest get-aways in history" was made by the Ypsilanti Signal Corps while at Camp Chase S. Osborn in Port Huron. They had a section on the right flank and the enemy turned their flank and came in on their rear. They popped up in the woods near the Ypsilanti men, who had to cut the wire and "beat it." One of the regular officers looking on pronounced it one of the quickest get-aways he had ever seen.

Thirty-eight men out of a total of 46 belonging to the local Signal Corps went to camp, and of these M. S. E. Chapin, Austin Klein, Sergt. Harvey, Corporal Dunlap and Private Tooke proved themselves particularly clever operators. Sergt. Smellie was acting sergeant-major for Major Britton.

The automobile which was loaned by the Adrian people for transporting the wireless outfit did good service. There will be an effort to get the state to buy this car.

Major Britton of this city and Captain Foster of Ann Arbor are among the twelve men who are representing Michigan at the national tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio. The outcome of this occasion is watched with keen interest by Michigan people, as last season Michigan leaped from the twenty-second place to the ninth among the states. It is hoped that this record may be raised by the twelve regulars and three alternates which represent Michigan this year.

STEEL MEN DECLARE HE IS TO HEAD REPUBLIC IRON AND STEEL COMPANY.

Pittsburg, Aug. 21.—Steel men here declare that William Ellis Corey, former head of the United States Steel corporation, will be the successor of the late John W. Gates as president of the Republic Iron and Steel company. It is pointed out that this move on the part of the Republic Steel company marks the beginning of the much talked of merger of the Republic, the Bethlehem and the Lackawanna company.

Strength is added to the report by the recent announcement of Mr. Corey that he would return actively to the steel business.

GOOD EVENING SERVICE

REV. AUGUSTINE OF NEW JERSEY DELIVERED SPLENDID SERMON.

There was a good attendance at the union out-of-door service Sunday evening on the Presbyterian lawn. Rev. Howard Augustine, formerly of Ypsilanti and now the pastor of a large and thriving church in Hanover, New Jersey, preached a sermon from Daniel, drawing lessons of bravery and loyalty to convictions from the life of Daniel. The music under the direction of Miss Mary Dickinson was especially attractive. The singers were Miss Elizabeth Milspangh, Miss Christine Erwin, Miss Elizabeth Gardner, Roy Parsons and Fred Reinhardt. Mr. Parsons sang a solo.

ACCEPT TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

Railway Men of Great Britain Return to Work.

TRAIN SERVICE RESTRICTED

Some Men Stand Out for Minimum Wage of $5.50 a Week, with Eight Hours' Work a Day—Credit to Lloyd-George.

London, Aug. 21.—The terms of the settlement of the strike are generally accepted by the railway men throughout Great Britain, and the men claim victory.

Many have resumed work, but numbers of them have not yet returned. The expectations are that everything will be in full swing again before Tuesday or Wednesday, though it is probable that the majority of those who went out will have returned to work by this evening.

There is train service, but for several days possibly it will be restricted. The men declared that they will not return until it is agreed that the minimum wage shall be $5.50 a week with eight hours' work. At big meetings at Newcastle, York and elsewhere on the Northeastern this sentiment was endorsed. Pickets are being maintained, and there is very little traffic.

Fresh troops to the number of 2,500 have been sent to York. There are 1,600 strikers at Carlisle who refuse the terms of the settlement.

At Manchester the men are divided. The strike organizers say that a victory has been won by the men and urge them to return to work. This proposition was submitted to a mass-meeting at Manchester and the organizers were howled down. The men objecting are chiefly carmen and casual workers.

Most of the credit for the ultimate success of their efforts appears to rest upon the shoulders of David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, who, in his statements to parliament and in an interview with the managers and the men, worked for conciliation when all others of the interested parties seemed to have given it up.

Record-Breaking Crowd at Chicago Aviation Field.

Lincoln Beachey, in Curtiss Biplane, Goes Higher Than World Record Mark.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Lincoln Beachey, flying his Curtiss racing biplane with a sixty-horsepower motor, equalled the world's official altitude record, reaching a height of 11,152 feet. The official record accepted by the aero authorities is 11,150 feet, but according to a rule generally adopted, an aviator must go at least 360 feet higher than the record in order to set a new mark.

Beachey's flight was made in the presence of the greatest crowd that has ever assembled in Chicago. The police estimated that there were 1,600,000 spectators inside the park, along the streets, viaducts and on buildings within sight of Grant park.

BEATTIE TRIAL BEGINS TODAY

Virginia Case Is to Be Most Sensational One.

STAGE SETTING IS PECULIAR

Courthouse Is Nearly 150 Years Old and Lies in Depth of Forest—Young Man on Trial for Cruel Murder of Wife.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 21.—This morning at 10 o'clock the little old bell over the Chesterfield county courthouse sent a rusty clangor out into the forest, and Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., came into court to answer to the charge of wife murder.

Thus began one of the most sensational trials on a murder charge that has occurred in Virginia in a decade, and the setting of this trial is one of the strangest in the history of American jurisprudence. Henry Clay Beattie will fight for his life in what was known as "the wilderness" during the rebellion. The roof housing the scene of justice is nearly 150 years old.

It lies at a crossing of two country roads buried in the forest. The prisoner, who has been in a cell in the Henrico county jail here in Richmond, rode eighteen miles to face the jury that is to try him.

Walter A. Watson, the presiding judge, had to make fifteen miles through the woods to mount the bench. Sheriff W. C. Gill, court officer, hitched his horse to a democrat wagon and traveled five miles to his post. The nearest town, Centerville, meaning center of nowhere—is five miles away from the court house on the railroad and trains stop there about as often as the rural free delivery postman. All of this plunge into the wilderness is because Beattie's lawyers count on getting a jury of Chesterfield county men who know the father of the prisoner and who might be more favorable in their disposition toward Beattie, Jr., on this account. Though young Beattie's home is just across the James river from Richmond the crime charged against him occurred in the forest shadowed roads of Chesterfield and no shade of venue will take the prisoner away from the isolated little old court house, where, in colonial times, "court day" brought out all the grandees of the plantations for miles around.

With the details of the crime for which Beattie is on trial nearly the whole country has been made familiar by many tellings of the tale. At 8 o'clock on the night of July 18, Beattie helped to lift his young wife, who had been Miss Louise Owen, of an old Maryland family, out of a sick bed and into his automobile. She had been the mother of her first child just a week and was still weak. This was her first venture out. They drove from their home in South Richmond out into Middleman turnpike, which runs through the almost unbroken woods. An hour later Beattie driving the machine with one hand and holding his wife's body with the other, drove back to the house. He screamed that they had been held up on the road and shot.

Mrs. Beattie had a gunshot wound as big as a half dollar in her forehead. A charge of bird shot had entered there. Beattie's lap was blood drenched.

Before the coroner's jury met, detectives brought to light a sordid tale of the liaison which has existed between Beattie and a girl of the village, Beulah Buford, from the time the latter was fourteen years old, down almost to the moment of Beattie's marriage to Miss Owen on Aug. 21, 1910. These relations, the detectives learned, seemed to be on the point of being renewed, if they had not been, in fact, at the time of Mrs. Beattie's murder. Beulah Buford was the mother of a child which she said was Beattie's.

IS FIRST REPRESENTATIVE

CAPT. M'KAY LEAVES TODAY FOR AVIATION TRAINING IN EASTERN SCHOOL.

Captain George MacKay leaves this evening for Garden City, Long Island, where he will enter the government aviation school, as a representative of Michigan. This is considered the best and largest school of its kind in the world. Michigan is the first state to be so represented, and the acceptance of Captain MacKay and his training partake of the nature of an experiment. The selection is most happy, for not only has Capt. MacKay distinguished himself in the work of the Signal Corps, but his scholarship has a sound basis also, he having graduated from the University of Michigan June last.

MONDAY, AUGUST 21, 1911

As might have been expected, the President is being very severely criticized for vetoing the Arizona statehood bill. Those opposed to the President are of course taking full advantage of the weakest point in the controversy from the President's standpoint, as they view it. And that is this: that, after the people of Arizona had fought a long fight to retain in their constitution what they regarded as a purely democratic provision of recall applied to all their servants, the constitution was accepted by them; but it was provided that once more the recall of judges be submitted to popular vote. This would permit the people of Arizona, after the very extended debate on this question which has been raging for months, to see perchance the error of their ways and correct this before it became a fixed part of their constitution. And now, say the opponents of the President, this is what he vetoed, not the recall, but the right of the people, who have already voted three to one for their constitution, to vote on it again.

The President, undoubtedly, sincerely believes the recall provision as applied to judges to be absolutely bad and consequently doesn't care whether the people of Arizona approve of it again by popular vote or not. He doesn't propose that it shall become a part of their constitution with his consent. We doubt if the people generally will coincide with the President's attitude that judges should be absolutely secure from the recall because the recall can be applied so summarily that it doesn't really represent the calm judgment of the majority, and there would consequently be no chance of protecting the rights of the minority. The machinery, as we understand it, providing for the recall makes it necessary for some considerable time to elapse between the time when a sufficient number of people by petition signify their desire to apply the recall and a vote can be taken. The recall actually made, or voted upon, and, perchance, be voted down. It seems to us that there is quite ample time for the merits of the case to be properly placed before the people so that they could vote intelligently upon it. And we believe that the average citizen will take this view.

But the average citizen is not trained in the law and the judiciary and very few of our citizens are thus trained as is the president. And his convictions are entitled to large respect, because of his wide experience. But we believe he has placed a club in the hands of his enemies and that they will use it to the utmost. They will undoubtedly hurl at him that the minority, which he is so solicitous of protecting, when reduced to the last analysis in Arizona, will be found to be the Santa Fe railroad, the Southern Pacific railroad, the Morgan-Guggenheim gang, and their ilk, which interests have thus far controlled the politics of Arizona, New Mexico, and, until very recently, California, and in a lesser way other states through which they run and have large property holdings. The friends of the President will rejoice that, had he been a politician, he would have signed this bill promptly; but, instead, he is a statesman and consequently took the responsibility for doing what he felt Congress should have done itself.

"WHAT IS SOCIALISM?"

"There is an aphorism current among Socialists that collective ownership must end at your doorstep, because it is there that private ownership begins, and this saying is a fairly accurate description of the Socialist's attitude. Consequently, though there would be a collective ownership of all industries employing many workers, there would be private ownership of all industries in which single individuals employed only their own efforts, and just as a man would own his own clothing, his own personal effects and, under a land-lease, probably his own home, so it would be recognized that, if he chose to forego the advantages of cooperation, no individual would be at variance with the welfare of society if, again under a land-lease, he worked his own shop or his own farm.

"But how would there be obtained control of those industries which, under Socialism, must be collectively owned? How, once in political power, would the majority—the workers—secure for the nation the land and the machinery of production?

"There is a pretty general fear among our capitalistic descendants of the American pioneers, the first immigrants to what was then the New World, that the Socialists will take the land by much the same methods that the revered pioneer ancestors of those capitalists employed in taking land from its aboriginal owners, the Indians. Prominent capitalists in the Republican party have openly expressed a dread lest there will be only a minority of Socialists favorable to freeing the wage-slaves by purchasing the means of production, just as there was only a minority of the Republicans favoring the freeing of the negro chattel-slaves by purchase before the War of the Rebellion.

"So far as my Socialistic reading has taken me, there seems, however, scant ground for these alarms. Much would, naturally, depend upon the attitude of Capital when the event befall. By far the larger number of authorities are divided only over the problem as to whether it would be better to pay whatever was asked, or what a regularly authorized and properly constituted board of appraisers decided to be just.

"No method could, of course, be applied save by the will of the majority, which is the law of the republic. Seizure has, it must be granted, the Spartan virtue of simplicity; and some virtue there would also be in investigations to decide what property-holders had, by actual earnings, acquired valid title to the property they possessed; but, in the far more likely chance of purchase, either money would be obtainable through the issuance of bonds, or there could be granted to the late owners privileges that, ultimately, would be quite as good as gold. All things considered, it appears, therefore, that, if any discontent resulted, it would result only in the small Capitalistic class, and, as it could thus by no means equal the present discontent in the large wage-earning class, the effect upon society at large would be beneficial."

LUMBER MILLS SHUT DOWN

Orange, Tex., Aug. 21.—More than a score of larger lumber mills in the Gulf coast timber territory of Texas and Louisiana have closed down in response to the order of the Southern Lumber Operators' association for the purpose of combatting the efforts of the Brotherhood of Timber Workers to unionize the plants. Ten large mills in this territory were already closed on account of labor troubles. These thirty odd mills employed regularly about 12,000 men and had a daily output of about 4,000,000 feet of lumber. The close-down is for an indefinite period.

EFFORT TO SAVE LAD VAIN

Melvin Stark of Marine City Drowned at St. Clair.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 21.—The home of Henry Hartman at St. Clair was changed from one of gladness when Melvin Stark, aged eight years, of Marine City, who was one of thirteen people visiting at the house, was drowned in St. Clair river. Stark and a number of other children of the party were playing on the river bank when they spied a boat. They all climbed into the craft, which finally drifted away from the shore, the rope having broken loose. All became excited and Stark, frantic with fear, jumped into the river.

Screams of the other children attracted Roy Hartman to the scene and he leaped into the water in an effort to save the drowning boy. He managed to clutch the child as the latter was going down, once catching a hold on his fingers and the second time grasping the wrist. His efforts to keep himself afloat, however, and the struggles to save the lad were so great that his strength became exhausted and he was finally forced to let go of the drowning lad.

SEE RICHES IN TUBERS

Potato Yield in the Copper Country Breaks Records—Growers Profit.

Hancock, Mich., Aug. 21.—With indicated yields running all the way from 75 to 200 bushels an acre, the humble potato promises to be a gold mine for the upper peninsula farmer this fall. While other sections of the country have suffered from drought and excessive heat, the conditions north of the straits have been almost ideal for the growth of the tuber, which is cultivated extensively here, and farmers are looking forward to a record crop.

Potatoes are now selling at 40 cents the peck here, and in Wisconsin the price is even higher. Houghton county farmers are making an effort to unionize, with a view to controlling the market for their produce, and if they succeed it is doubtful whether any copper country potatoes will be sold under a dollar a bushel. They have sold as low as 20 cents.

TAFT IS SURELY COMING

Secretary Hilles Writes that Executive Will Visit Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21.—All doubts as to President Taft's visit to Michigan and therefore to Detroit and the Michigan State Fair were dispelled when President Newton of the fair, received a letter from Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president, in reply to a letter sent to the president asking him if he could positively fix the date of his visit here that Detroit people might proceed with their plans for his reception and entertainment.

Secretary Hilles wrote that the president will surely make the trip to Michigan in September and that Detroit is certainly on his itinerary. To fix the exact date, however, Mr. Hilles says will be impossible until congress adjourns and an opportunity is had to make out the complete itinerary and schedule for the entire western trip.

ALLEGED FORGER ARRESTED

CHICAGO DETECTIVES SAY HE ASSISTED IN FRAUDS HERE.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Clarence D. Held, successful business man and a club man, was arrested charged with forgery. His arrest represented four years' work on the part of the Pinkerton Detective Agency to try to connect the Chicago man with a bogus check passer who operated in 111anapolis and Cincinnati in 1907.

Held, as an advertising solicitor, is accused of having defrauded many banks and merchants through his advertising schemes. Held occupied a suite of rooms at the Grand Pacific hotel. He is a brother to Dr. R. Johnson Held, noted New York specialist, who is a son-in-law of Huyler, the chocolate manufacturer.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 21.—With a twelve-mile breeze at his back Harry N. Atwood, the Boston aviator, resumed his St. Louis-New York flight and in actual flying time of two hours and 11 minutes covered 103 miles. He landed at Lyons, N. Y., twenty-eight miles beyond Rochester.

Including this flight Atwood has covered 829 miles, and with the luck that he has had since the start, should land at Coney Island on Wednesday evening. He has still 336 miles to go and a century a day is an easy jump for the Boston man.

UNUSUAL INTEREST IN THIS YEAR'S ENCAMPMENT OF G. A. R. VETERANS

45th Meeting Coincides With 50th Anniversary of War's Start

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, held at Rochester, N. Y., in the week beginning Aug. 21, is of more than ordinary interest in that it marks the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of the civil war and the forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the G. A. R. It is not too much to say that this has been the most important patriotic order in our history, containing in its ranks presidents, senators, representatives, supreme court justices, governors, foreign ambassadors and scores of other eminent officials in all branches of military, naval and civil life. While as an organization the G. A. R. has never participated in partisan politics as such, it has wielded an immense political influence. Its moral effect on the younger generation none can measure, but with its powerful appeal to the imagination, affection and patriotism of the country it has been tremendous.

Considering the fact that the civil war was fought for the most part by volunteer armies and that at its close these citizen soldiers returned quietly to the avocations of peace, the Grand Army of the Republic stands without a parallel in the history of the human race. It is a testimonial to democracy, a tribute to popular government, a flesh and blood witness of Americanism such as to challenge the respect of the world and of the ages. Never, perhaps, did a human institution offer a more complete or more speedy proof of its merit than did the great republic in the trial by fire out of which the Grand Army grew. When millions of men offer their lives for a flag and an ideal and after their task is accomplished peacefully disband and return to their homes it is a demonstration that something higher than selfishness governs human action.

We are still too close to the civil war period to realize its true significance. To so realize it we must see it as a whole and contrast it with other times and climes. Only the historians of another age, only the vision of the future, can discern its full meaning. To behold the sublimity of a great mountain, or the beauty of a fine painting, we must be at a certain distance. That gives us perspective, mellows the rough outlines and surfaces and affords us a whole view. To understand the civil war, to take its measure, we must look at it against the background of the past; we must set it over against the old world. The civil war era gave us Lincoln, freed the slave, preserved the republic and produced an army that voluntarily effaced itself when liberty and union were assured. With almost illimitable power the army used that power only for the general good. Seen in this aspect, nothing finer or higher was ever exhibited by so great a mass of men in a secular cause.

What the G. A. R. Typifies.

This is something of what the Grand Army typifies to the younger generation. But in my own view our appreciation is as nothing compared to that which will be expressed when the one hundredth or two hundredth anniversary of the struggle is celebrated. What would the people of that day give for the spectacle which we behold? We have thousands of the old soldiers yet with us. In 1901 there will remain naught but a memory. To the people of that day the Grand Army will be almost as distant as Washington's army is from us. Perhaps peace will then be universal. Perhaps liberty and enlightenment will have spread to all lands and races. Perhaps there may even be a republic of the whole world. Considering the speed with which race evolution and progress now move, these things are all possible. If these results, or something like them, shall have then been reached, how much will they lend to the glamour of this war, which was so powerful a factor in promoting them!

When America is as thickly peopled as Europe, when music, painting and poetry, when the higher culture and learning, shall have come to crown our civilization, when all sectionalism and partisan passion—at least as we now know them—shall have utterly disappeared, when an appeal will be the courage and sacrifice, the unselfishness and idealism, of the civil war make to the people of that day! What a tender and gentle memory will Lincoln become! What a beauty will the words union and emancipation take on! How will our children's children in that day thrill to read the old story! What would it mean to them if they could have the tottering and gray haired soldiers march down the streets of their cities!

The Debt We Owe.

Seen in this light, each annual encampment of the Grand Army takes on a new significance. It is a privilege and an opportunity—a privilege to read history in flesh and blood letters, to hear it from the lips of those who made it; an opportunity to express to these soldiers while living some of the gratitude and love with which the future will dower their memory.

Most Patriotic Organization in the Country's History

We cannot pay a debt of gratitude wholly in pensions or in offices or in printed tributes. It can only be paid from a nation's full heart, expressed in the loving words and deeds of all the citizens of that nation. We are apt to say: "Yes, there's old Bill Jones. He fought in the war. I know him. Poor old duffer!" Or, "There's Tom Smith; he's in the soldiers' home; lives off the government; gets a pension, too, and we foot the bill." Yet we do not remember that the government first lived off Tom Smith and his kind—that if it had not been for those it would not have lived at all; that they tramped through rain and mud, ice and snow, slept in the fields and in old barns, ate hardtack, faced death, lost arms and legs and health, groined in hospitals or rotting in prisons, that we might have peace and protection, that we might make enough to pay taxes. We fail to remember, also, that the poor old Bill Joneses and Tom Smiths—at least in their collective capacity—are among the immortals.

Perhaps the people of Athens said: "Yes, there's old Socrates, goes bare-feet, lives with a scolding wife and ask funny questions. I know him. Poor old Soc!" Or: "That's old Gaillet; had a crazy notion that the world is round. What d'ye think of that? Took it all back, though, when they put him in jail." Yet these names, despised in their own day, have become far shining through the ages to enchant the eyes of the world. Well, the old soldiers may not individually be of the Socrates or Gaillet stature. There are only one or two such giants born each century. Yet these blue coated ones gave what they had. And taken all together, merging them in a composite photograph, as it were, this typical private soldier of the north, this plowboy or clerk or factory hand that answered the call of "Father Abraham" and fought under Grant, will be a figure seen as far as any. He, too, is among the immortals. And just as we would give a king's ransom, perhaps, for the privilege to touch a hem of the garment of a Plato or a Paul, a Shakespeare or a Cromwell, so the future would offer an equal price for a button from the old army blouse or a look into the faded eyes of the men who saved the republic in "the times that tried men's souls."

We of today have them without money and without price. Here they come—"Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching." "We'll rally round the flag, boys!" "Coming, Father Abraham!" "Hurrah! Hurrah! We bring the jubilee!" Their feet halt, perhaps, but their eyes shine. Pathetic stoop in the shoulders, but how they straighten when the lifes thrill into one of the old times! Look at them well. You will never have the chance to see so many of them together again.

Held your boy high so that he may see all the details and drink in all the lesson. Perhaps some day his shoulders will bear the burdens of the republic and he will remember that his father held him aloft to see the good gray soldiers of the old war.

I would not give much for a man who can behold a spectacle like this without growing misty eyed and swallowing hard. It is not alone a question of patriotism, but one of imagination and of a human heart. These white haired men have lived a Homeric epic. They have wrestled with the Titans that make and destroy nations. They have performed deeds that will give the world something to talk and write about for a thousand years. They are blood brothers of those who fought at Marathon, at Zama, at Tours, at Asklani, at Moncontour, at Naseby and at Bunker Hill. They are those who hewed out one of the red steps in the stairway on which humanity mounts upward. Men will read their story when America is as old as Europe and when the war drums throb no longer and the battle flags are furled in the parliament of man, the federation of the world.

History of Encampments.

The Rochester meeting is the forty-fifth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. The first post was organized at Decatur, Ill., April 6, 1866. There were two or three men who had been active in promoting the idea, but the honor of being known as the founder of the G. A. R. is given to Major Benjamin F. Stephenson, who has a monument in Washington.

The first annual encampment was held at Indianapolis, Nov. 20, 1866. General Stephen A. Hurlbut of Illinois was made commander in chief. There seems to have been no annual encampment in 1867, but the next year one gathered at Philadelphia and General John A. Logan, the "Black Eagle of Illinois," was made the head. He held the office three years, the longest time it was ever bestowed on one man. The present commander in chief is Col. John E. Gilman of Boston, who fought in the Army of the Potomac and who was elected last year at Atlantic City. At the Rochester meeting the Sons of Veterans and Woman's Relief corps will also gather. President Taft addresses the encampment on Aug. 23.

In 1910 there were 6,035 Grand Army posts, with a total membership of 213,901. At one time the membership was more than 400,000. In 1902 there were 6,416 posts and 283,745 members. This shows a falling off of 50,000 members in eight years, or about 6,000 per year. The number of deaths in the year ended June 30, 1910, was 5,325, which shows approximately the same ratio. On July 21 many members of the Grand Army and of the United Confederate Veterans, which is the corresponding organization at the south, met on the Bull Run battlefield to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the first great fight of the war. Toward each other two thin lines of white headed veterans advanced over the ground where they had charged fifty years before, but with the clapping of hands now in place of the crossing of bayonets then. The change typified that which has come over the spirit of the country. It is gratifying that within a few weeks of that day arbitration treaties were signed between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France, America having moved first in both cases. How fitting it would be if the fiftieth anniversary of the civil war could thus be celebrated by the initiation of a permanent world peace!

GOOD GAME WILL BE PLAYED AT NORMAL

Ypsilanti baseball fans will have an opportunity of attending an exceptionally interesting game Tuesday afternoon when the baseball team of Buffalo will play the Ypsilanti men on the Normal campus. The Buffalo team claim the championship of the East, and are conquerors of all the best semi-professional teams in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

The Ypsilanti team has made an excellent record in the season's games in this part of the country and will probably make a most formidable opponent for these crack New York players. An opportunity of securing this date was made possible by the fact that the New Yorkers had an open date on their way from Buffalo to Chicago, and will make Ypsilanti for a filler. The hour for the game has been set for 4 o'clock in order that the business men may have an opportunity of attending.

Donations have been received by Manager Pierce from several business men to help toward meeting expenses for the game and for further funds, tags have been printed to be sold at the game.

WASHTENAW MEN WIN AT GOLF FROM DETROIT

Twenty-three golf players from the Country Club of Detroit were trimmed to the tune of 33 to 27 Saturday afternoon when they met Washtenaw's delegation on the Washtenaw Club links for a well-planned tournament.

The tournament was perhaps the most enjoyable and distinguished golf occasion in the history of the local club. The Detroit players came on a special car, bringing caddies with them, and arrived at the club house in time for luncheon. A delightful luncheon was served at one o'clock and at two the tournament began.

MIRRORS ON TROLLEY CARS.

Purpose is to Prevent Accidents to Passengers in Alighting.

The Southern Pacific is making arrangements to place handsome mirrors in the rear of all its Los Angeles electric cars.

The innovation, according to officials of the company, is expected to please women patrons, but is designed to serve more important purposes, that of inducing women to alight facing the front and also to enable passengers to see before alighting whether automobiles or other vehicles are approaching from the rear.

It is believed that many accidents and consequently many costly lawsuits will be avoided by the installation of the mirrors. There is some apprehension among conductors that passengers of a vain disposition may linger too long before the glasses and block the aisles and steps.

Unreasonable.

To say the principles of nature must needs to be such as philosophy makes it, is to set bounds to omnipotence—Glanville.

FREE SAMPLE OF LAXATIVE CURED THEIR CONSTIPATION

When a person has become discouraged through years of failure to find a cure, and finally, perhaps, gives up trying, it is small wonder that he becomes skeptical. And yet, to all who have constipation, we would say, "Try just one thing more."

We wish you would try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a laxative tonic that has been used for a generation. Thousands are using it; surely some of your friends among the number. You can buy it of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, but better still, send your name and address to Dr. Caldwell for a free sample bottle. He will send you enough to convince you of its merits, and then if you like it you can buy it of your druggist. Mr. J. J. Petty of Unionville, Mo., Mr. George W. Zimmerman of Harrington, Pa., and many others of both sexes and in all parts of the country first used a sample bottle and now have it regularly in the house.

You will learn to do away with salts, waters and cathartics for these are but temporary relief, while Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is guaranteed to cure permanently. It will train your stomach and bowel muscles so that they will do their work again naturally without outside aid.
Cast aside your skepticism and try Syrup Pepsin.
Dr. Caldwell does not feel that the purchase of his remedy ends his obligation. He has specialized in stomach, liver and bowel diseases for over forty years and will be pleased to give the reader any advice on the subject free of charge. All are welcome to write him. Whether for the medical advice or the free sample address him Dr.
W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building,
Monticello, Ill.
